

Essential Skills and Mindsets To Lead and Grow Your Business

Being a leader or an entrepreneur requires a different skill set to lead and grow a business post-pandemic. The so-called “soft skills” of the past are now essential skills.

This keynote speech highlights the elevated mindsets and the essential leadership skills required to produce sustainable success in today’s New Abnormal. To paraphrase the great philosopher Yoda, it is time to unlearn what you have learned about leadership.

Leaders need new insights into what employees need from their leaders to thrive, collaborate, and contribute to the organization’s success. Sustainable success comes from employee engagement and involvement, which starts with leadership.

Steven provides a formula for success that will resonate with corporate leadership teams, association members, and conference participants.

Key messages in this keynote talk:

- Six areas in which to elevate your leadership mindset.
- The five essential skills to cascade throughout your leadership and managerial team.
- What employees need to feel good and be productive at work.
